

Test 3

READING AND USE OF ENGLISH (1 hour 15 minutes)

Part 1

Questions 1–8

For each question, choose the correct answer.

Mark your answers on the separate answer sheet.

A bike made of plastic

A few years ago, entrepreneur Frank Blasé was in Florida, USA. A conversation at a bicycle-rental store made him aware of the challenges of renting bikes near the sea. The bikes were constantly 1 to sand, wind and saltwater, causing them to go rusty very quickly. That's when an idea 2 to Frank – a bike made of plastic.

Attempts to design a plastic bike weren't new, but until Frank tried, no one had reached the 3 stage. The bike that Frank eventually made requires no 4 at all, and because it doesn't need oil, it doesn't attract dust or dirt. Perhaps even more importantly, each bike gives new life to 16 kilos of recycled plastic which would 5 have added to the problem of pollution. Currently, 90% of the bike is plastic, but future 6 , it is hoped, will be made 7 from plastic. Frank hopes that by sharing his technology, he will 8 other manufacturers to make similar bikes.

- | | | | | |
|---|----------------------|-----------------------|-----------------------|---------------------|
| 1 | A revealed | B displayed | C exposed | D uncovered |
| 2 | A occurred | B developed | C appeared | D emerged |
| 3 | A creation | B preparation | C invention | D production |
| 4 | A maintenance | B conservation | C management | D assistance |
| 5 | A furthermore | B otherwise | C nevertheless | D anyhow |
| 6 | A versions | B forms | C varieties | D kinds |
| 7 | A exactly | B thoroughly | C entirely | D perfectly |
| 8 | A qualify | B prepare | C approve | D enable |

Part 2

Questions 9–16

For each question, write the correct answer.

Write one word for each gap.

Write your answers IN CAPITAL LETTERS on the separate answer sheet.

Sarah Smith – teenage artist

Fourteen-year-old Sarah Smith normally spent her free time playing either hockey or football. But one day, she found 9 with some time on her hands and thought she would try painting. She decided to 10 use of some old brushes and paints her mother had lying around, and painted a portrait of a local farmer. It was based on a photograph of the man in his work clothes, and it 11 Sarah about 20 hours to complete.

Her parents were amazed by the finished portrait, and 12 was her art teacher at school. 13 only was it incredibly lifelike, but it also conveyed the farmer's personality. When the portrait was put forward for a national art exhibition, Sarah's teacher proudly posted a copy online, and it went viral.

14 then, Sarah has painted several more portraits, and her work is now in demand with international art collectors. 'It's incredible 15 good she is,' said a well-known collector. 'There are lots of painters with excellent techniques, but Sarah captures her subjects' souls, 16 is a very rare talent.'

Part 3

Questions 17–24

Read the text below. Use the word given in CAPITALS on the right to form a word that fits in the gap.

Write your answers IN CAPITAL LETTERS on the separate answer sheet.

What's so great about school?

It's early in the morning, and students everywhere are thinking ahead to their daily journey to school. For some, there may be a 17 to roll over and go back to sleep. Others bounce out of bed, looking forward to meeting up with their schoolmates.

Although school systems around the world may vary considerably, the vast majority of us start out by acquiring the 18 skills of reading, writing and arithmetic. But there's much more to education than facts and figures. Our 19 in the classroom helps us to develop necessary social skills, and even to gain 20 intelligence, for example by learning to understand other people through 21 of their reactions and behaviour towards us.

As we continue through education, teachers support us each step of the way on our voyage of 22 We start to understand all our own 23 and weaknesses, and become increasingly 24 as we begin to identify for ourselves the interests that we may wish to pursue in the future.

Keyword List

17 TEMPT

18 BASE

19 PRESENT

20 EMOTION

21 OBSERVE

22 DISCOVER

23 STRONG

24 DEPEND

Part 4

Questions 25–30

For each question, complete the second sentence so that it means the same as the first, using the word given. Do not change the word given. You must use between two and five words, including the word given.

Write only the missing words IN CAPITAL LETTERS on the separate answer sheet.

- 25 When he saw the traffic, Sam regretted not leaving for the concert half an hour earlier.

SET

When he saw the traffic, Sam wished for the concert half an hour earlier.

- 26 Dan only knew about the homework because I spoke to him about it.

IF

Dan wouldn't have known about the homework to him about it.

- 27 I need to do the work that I didn't have time for yesterday.

CATCH

I've the work that I didn't have time for yesterday.

- 28 Do you think they'll finish the new pool by the time our summer holidays start?

BE

Do you think the new pool by the time our summer holidays start?

- 29 People said Carlo had made up the story of how he'd lost his phone, but he insisted it was true.

ACCUSED

Carlo up the story of how he'd lost his phone, but he insisted it was true.

- 30 I think Maria took my coat home with her by mistake.

MUST

Maria my coat home with her by mistake.

Part 5

Questions 31–36

Read a magazine article about a teenager and her friends. For each question, choose the correct answer.

Mark your answers on the separate answer sheet.

Finding a best friend isn't always easy

On my first day at secondary school, I met a tall girl with dark hair who looked quite like me and with whom I'd go on to spend a significant portion of the first term. As all my existing friends from primary school had been assigned to different classes, which meant an enforced separation from them, I was on high alert for someone to attach myself to as quickly as possible. She seemed like the ideal candidate, and I approached her with the assumption that she would jump at the chance of my friendship.

It didn't take me long to realise she wasn't the person I thought she was. Beneath her mild-mannered appearance lay a rebellious streak which I struggled to match from the start. When she dared me to join her in 'the jungle' – a wooded area of the school grounds that was off limits to students, I agreed, as it sounded like fun. However, although we avoided the lunchtime supervisors who patrolled the area, the experience actually brought me little excitement or pleasure. More challenges followed, all proposed with a look that I knew meant trouble. Our dynamic was unhealthy, but I had no idea how to tackle it. Eventually my older sister alerted a teacher, who moved my friend to another class, much to my relief.

Thankfully, I had other friends by then, but no one special person. I began to long for another new girl to join the school and step into the now-vacant role of my best friend. I'd spend hours pretending to talk to an imaginary friend, marvelling at how much we had in common, and when our form teacher announced the arrival of a new girl in our class, I was in no doubt that I'd had some hand in making it happen. The moment I set eyes on Winnie, I knew she was the one. I wasn't even rattled when the form teacher made the error of assigning another girl to show her around instead of me. If Winnie was the girl I thought she was, she'd soon realise the other classmate wasn't the friend for her. As the week edged by, we made tentative steps at conversation. By the weekend, we were firm friends.

Winnie and I were in sync from the start, bonding over our shared love of American TV, junk food and cinema. I discovered that she was clever, funny and refreshingly direct. This time around, I felt I could really be myself. All the traits that people had previously teased me for – my innocence, my caution, my dreams of becoming an actor – Winnie seemed to really appreciate. In her company, I flourished. I was myself, but newer and shinier. We were soulmates.

Three years later, Winnie's mother announced that the family was moving hundreds of miles away. Horrified at the prospect of being separated, Winnie and I frantically discussed the issue. I'm not sure whose idea it was to ask my parents if she could live with us, but it was my job to dedicate an entire weekend to pestering them. I was aware it was a long shot – trying to pitch my parents the sort of set-up I'd only ever seen on TV soap operas. I tried everything, from emotional manipulation to begging until finally, late on the Sunday evening, to my complete shock, they gave in.

Winnie now lives at our house during term time, and will do until we graduate from school. She sleeps in my sister's bedroom, as my sister's away at college. Despite their initial reservations, my parents took to Winnie's presence in the household almost immediately. She's polite and domesticated, doing chores without prompting. 'You could be a bit more like Winnie' has become a popular catchphrase in our house. I'm not remotely offended, providing she gets to stay. I'm just glad I didn't lose my best friend.

31 What do we learn about the writer in the first paragraph?

- A She wanted a break from people she'd known at primary school.
- B She had little experience in starting new friendships.
- C She knew not to judge people on their looks.
- D She was eager to make a new friend.

32 The writer uses the phrase 'our dynamic was unhealthy', to mean

- A their behaviour got them into trouble.
- B she and her friend had conflicting personalities.
- C their relationship wasn't good for them.
- D her friend wasn't being honest about her intentions.

33 In the third paragraph, we learn that the writer's imagination caused her to

- A criticise the actions of her form teacher.
- B feel that Winnie's arrival at the school was fate.
- C break up a friendship between Winnie and another girl.
- D have an unrealistic idea of how a best friend should act.

34 What point does the writer make in the fourth paragraph?

- A Over time, she became more like Winnie.
- B She was able to act naturally around Winnie.
- C Other people changed their opinions of her, thanks to Winnie.
- D She ensured her friendship with Winnie was different from previous ones.

35 How did the writer feel before she approached her parents?

- A unsure of the details of her plan
- B sorry that she'd agreed to talk to them
- C doubtful that she'd have any success
- D concerned about the limited time she had

36 How does the writer feel now?

- A ashamed of how little housework she'd previously done
- B relaxed about being unfavourably compared to Winnie
- C pleased to have someone to replace her absent sister
- D irritated by her parents' attitude towards Winnie

Part 6

Questions 37–42

Read an article about a teenager and his sleep patterns. Six sentences have been removed from the text below. For each question, choose the correct answer. There is one extra sentence which you do not need to use.

Mark your answers on the separate answer sheet.

Getting more sleep

16-year-old student Rob Barnes describes the steps he took to get more sleep.

I've always preferred staying up at night to getting up early – I'm a night owl rather than an early bird. Even when it's really late in the evening, and I've got college the next day, I prefer to sit quietly by myself, reluctant to cut the moment short.

I hadn't seen my behaviour as a problem until I read an article in a science magazine about what the writer called 'sleep procrastination' – in other words, putting off going to bed. 37 I had to admit, it sounded familiar. The article suggested that the number of people who share this behaviour is on the increase – although not everyone's alertness and performance is negatively affected the following day.

It's a situation I could identify with. If I finished studying late, I needed time to relax, despite my tiredness, after the energy I'd spent on a college assignment. Of course, if I didn't have to get up early, then going to bed late wouldn't matter, as I'd easily make up for the lost hours of sleep. But sadly, my study schedule didn't fit around my night-owl behaviour. 38 And that wasn't the only negative effect: in the long term, according to the article, poor sleep habits might even damage my health.

Not all sleep procrastinators behave in the same way. I learned this through online contact with many other night owls who stayed up late watching films on their laptops. As for myself, I'd regularly lose track of time while playing games late at night on my phone. 39

After all, I was enjoying the challenge the games gave me and was reluctant to stop. However, I finally had to admit it was time to do something about it.

The article had a number of useful suggestions. 40 I was keen to get started on these as quickly as possible, and I initially worked on adopting a new mindset. I tried to see my room as a place where I could relax. Slowly, that began to have an effect. I didn't always get to sleep any earlier, but it was a start.

The article also recommended getting plenty of natural light whenever possible. 41 I started walking to college every morning, which seemed to help a bit, although whether it was the light or the increased exercise, I'm not sure. Another useful thing I learned from the article was making my room as dark as possible at night, to trigger the release of the hormone melatonin, which makes us sleepy.

Although I was reluctant to give up staying up late, the benefits were so great that I decided to make permanent changes to my behaviour. I finally realised that, however much I enjoyed staying awake until midnight and beyond, I was just making things worse for myself. 42 My parents and teachers are certainly impressed with the results!

- A As a result, I began to see how I could make some significant changes.
- B Therefore, finding time to unwind also needs to allow for adequate periods of sleep.
- C Apparently, this is typical of many people needing to relax after working or studying late.
- D Despite my initial doubts, the improvements to my sleep and my studies have been noticeable.
- E In fact, it often meant seriously underperforming the following day.
- F It seemed this could enhance the quality of my sleep.
- G It took me a while to see the habit as a problem, though.

Part 7

Questions 43–52

Read an article about the rediscovery of a species of small fish in Türkiye. For each question, choose the correct section. Each section may be chosen more than once.

Mark your answers on the separate answer sheet.

Rediscovering a tiny fish in Türkiye

A

The Batman River loach, a tiny cylindrical yellow-and-brown striped fish, is one of the smallest loach species in the world. It was thought to be extinct after the last confirmed sighting nearly 50 years ago. But then Dr Cüneyt Kaya, who had been studying fish in eastern Türkiye for more than a decade, and his colleague Dr Münevver Oral found the little fish in a stream off the Batman River last year. When they did so, the story was of huge international interest: ‘Batman loach returns’ ... ‘Tiny superhero fish detected’ ... It was almost inevitable that this story would result in plenty of similar comic-book jokes in headlines around the world. Batman is a city and province in Türkiye, and it’s also the name of the river near where the fish was found. ‘For Turkish people, the name seems normal, but for many people around the world, Batman is a comic-book superhero, so they find it strange and funny,’ says Kaya.

B

The maximum known size of a Batman River loach is 3.6 cm. ‘Perhaps that’s why it wasn’t easy to find,’ says Kaya. But after the fish appeared on a list of the ‘top ten most wanted lost fish’ compiled by two conservation organisations, he and Oral set up a project to look for it. The search was focused on a particular area of the Batman River, but finding the fish, when others had failed, was down to luck, says Oral. ‘Cüneyt and I were at the beginning of a nine-day field trip in eastern Türkiye,’ she says. ‘The aim of the trip was to research another small fish species, which belongs to the same family as the Batman River loach. We used a net with a smaller mesh than usual so the fish would not slip through it.’ As it happened, with the seasonally lower level of water, the Batman River loach went into the net on the very first day, after not being seen for 48 years.

C

Kaya and Oral found Batman River loaches in two different streams: 14 in shallow, rocky, fast-flowing areas of the Sarim stream, and nine in the Han stream. ‘When I saw it, I thought it might be another fish species,’ says Kaya. ‘I took more samples, and once I was sure this was the Batman River loach, I was very excited.’ And since last year, Kaya and Oral have returned to the same streams. ‘After the first discovery, we went back there and saw about 50 Batman River loaches,’ says Kaya. ‘The fish population is doing well. But the stream is very small and the population restricted.’ There are two critical issues in the river: pollution, especially plastic pollution, and fishing. Abandoned or broken fishing nets get left behind, stuck in streams. So Kaya says they need to clean up the river and protect the species.

D

The best way to solve these problems, says Kaya, is to educate people, so he and Oral have been to several high schools in the region to talk about microplastics and the effects of fishing, and they’ve had some very encouraging results. They’ve also had a positive response from the government. Rediscovering lost species gives conservationists hope, not just for that species, but for protecting wider ecosystems, the two scientists say. ‘Removing the pollution and nets will benefit all the species in the river ecosystem, not just the Batman River loach,’ says Kaya. They also think that these streams may potentially contain other species that are only found in that particular area. They suspect there is one, or maybe even two, new fish species there. They can’t name them yet, but they’re working on the findings.

Which section mentions

only managing to do something by chance?	43
threats to the survival of a species?	44
someone not immediately recognising what had been found?	45
how much attention a rediscovery attracted?	46
achieving something different from what was originally intended?	47
the belief that something no longer existed?	48
why some discoveries make people feel optimistic?	49
what was done to confirm that something was correct?	50
a reason for something being challenging?	51
attempts to improve a situation?	52

WRITING (1 hour 20 minutes)

Part 1

Question 1

You must answer this question.

Write your answer in 140–190 words in an appropriate style on the separate answer sheet.

- 1 In your English class you have been talking about teenagers getting jobs to earn money in their free time. Now, your English teacher has asked you to write an essay for homework.

Write your essay using all the notes and giving reasons for your point of view.

Is it a good idea for teenagers to have jobs to earn money in their free time?

Notes

Write about:

- learning new skills
- effect on studies
- (your own idea)

Part 2

Questions 2–4

Write an answer to one of the questions in this part.

Write your answer in 140–190 words in an appropriate style on the separate answer sheet.

Put the question number in the box at the top of the answer sheet.

- 2 You see this announcement on an English-language website:

Articles wanted

CREATIVE PEOPLE AROUND THE WORLD

We are looking for articles about well-known creative people, such as writers, artists, actors or musicians. Tell us about a creative person whose work you like. Why do you find their work interesting? Do you think it's important to have creative people in society?

The best articles will be published on our website.

Write your article.

- 3 You see this announcement on an English-language website:

Reviews wanted

A NOVEL THAT YOUNG PEOPLE WILL ENJOY

Write us a review of a novel you've read which you think will appeal to young people. Tell us briefly what the novel is about, and describe your favourite character. Explain why the novel will appeal to young people.

The best reviews will be posted on our website.

Write your review.

- 4 You have seen this announcement in an English-language magazine for teenagers:

Stories wanted

We are looking for stories for our new English-language magazine for teenagers. Your story must begin with this sentence:

As Harriet approached the tall tree, she saw something big in the top branches.

Your story must include:

- a phone call
- a newspaper article.

Write your story.

LISTENING (approximately 40 minutes)

Part 1

Questions 1–8

For each question, choose the correct answer.

Listening test audio

-
- 1 You hear two friends talking about a video of a news item on the girl's phone.
What do they agree about the parrot in it?
- A It was trained to act in the way it did.
 - B Its behaviour made the reporter look foolish.
 - C What it did suited the theme of the report.
- 2 You hear a girl telling a friend about her plan to do a summer course on e-gaming.
How does her friend feel about it?
- A He is impressed that she decided to do it.
 - B He is surprised that she chose a particular activity.
 - C He is afraid that she will find it challenging.
- 3 You hear two friends talking about a science experiment.
What does the boy say he enjoyed?
- A predicting what would happen
 - B deciding what equipment to use
 - C finding out the results
- 4 You hear a girl telling a friend about her first surfing lesson.
How does she feel about it now?
- A ready to have another go
 - B satisfied with the progress she made
 - C annoyed by the instructor's comments

5 You hear part of a podcast about zebras.What does the presenter say about the black and white stripes zebras have?

- A The evidence gathered about them has been unreliable.
- B There is no broad agreement about what their function is.
- C They vary considerably from one individual to another.

6 You hear a boy telling a friend about a trip to an outdoor sculpture exhibition.What does he say about the exhibition?

- A It displayed artwork that exceeded his expectations.
- B It taught him an important lesson about looking at artwork.
- C It inspired him to create similar artwork himself.

7 You hear a boy talking to a friend about watching the same film many times.What does he say about it?

- A He enjoys noticing details he hadn't seen before.
- B He admits he's not very adventurous in his habits.
- C He finds it more relaxing than watching something new.

8 You hear part of a radio programme about people who speak many different languages.What aspect of speaking multiple languages does the woman talk about?

- A what some language learners do to become so good at it
- B whether it is an ability which has a biological explanation
- C how research on the subject can make it easier to achieve

Part 2

Questions 9–18

You will hear a teenager called Owen giving a presentation about his experience of learning about journalism by taking part in what is called the Young Reporter Scheme. For each question, write the correct answer. Write a word or short phrase.

Writing articles for the Young Reporter Scheme (YRS)

When he was at primary school, the idea that in future he might write about 9 for a newspaper appealed to Owen.

Owen thinks a session on how to 10 was the best part of the YRS training.

A rule that YRS students should not write about 11 was something Owen found hard to understand.

Owen was disappointed about the number of 12 on the webpage where his first article appeared.

A profile of a local 13 was the article that gave Owen most satisfaction to write.

Owen was impressed by the 14 of a hairdresser he interviewed for an article.

Owen was surprised by the reaction to his article about a planned new 15 in the local area.

Owen went to see a 16 using theatre tickets given to him as a prize for a review he wrote.

The YRS awards ceremony was held in a 17

Owen thinks the skills he needs for 18 greatly improved through doing the YRS.

Part 3

Questions 19–23

You will hear five short extracts in which teenagers are talking about playing a violin solo at their school concert. How does each speaker feel about the piece of music they played?

For each question, choose the correct answer.

Use each answer only once. There are three extra answers which you do not need to use.

Listening test audio

- | | | |
|-----------|-----------------|---|
| Speaker 1 | 19 | A relieved not to be involved in choosing it |
| Speaker 2 | 20 | B disappointed initially about having to play it |
| Speaker 3 | 21 | C surprised by how it made them feel |
| Speaker 4 | 22 | D unsure about how to tackle it |
| Speaker 5 | 23 | E concerned about the level of complexity in it |
| | | F delighted to have improved through playing it |
| | | G nervous that the audience might not like it |
| | | H pleased about the freedom it allows the player |

Part 4Questions 24–30

You will hear an interview with a young woman called Holly Masefield, who recently took up skydiving – jumping out of a plane with a parachute. For each question, choose the correct answer.

Listening test audio

-
- 24 What first gave Holly the idea of taking up skydiving?
- A a relative's recommendation
 - B an interest in extreme sports
 - C a chance meeting
- 25 What does Holly say about her first jump?
- A The parachute took some time to open.
 - B There was little preparation beforehand.
 - C The landing was rather awkward.
- 26 How did Holly feel about having to jump with her instructor?
- A relieved that she could trust him completely
 - B disappointed that she had so little control
 - C confused by the information he gave her
- 27 Holly says the main appeal of skydiving for her is the
- A view she gets on the way down.
 - B thrill when the plane door first opens.
 - C feeling of free-falling through the air.
- 28 What has surprised Holly about other people's reaction to her hobby?
- A how many of them have decided to take it up
 - B the limited interest in her reasons for doing it
 - C their focus on the risks rather than the excitement

29 Holly thinks skydiving particularly suits her because she

- A has found it an ideal way to meet like-minded people.
- B is keen to have as many adventures as possible.
- C feels she's unusually fearless.

30 Holly is currently aiming to improve in order to

- A join a skydiving team to entertain people.
- B take part in skydiving competitions.
- C be able to skydive independently.